

8th June 2020 Sports

How many sports can you think of? Can you make a sports book? Draw a picture of something relating to the sports and write the sport underneath.

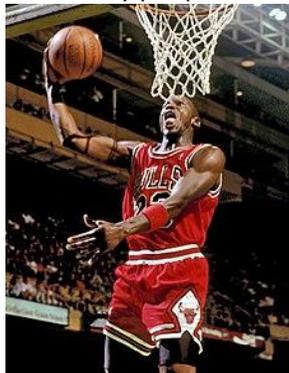

Hold a sports day at home. Think about what races you could hold. You can make a list of races, make medals/certificates. Recap on your ordinal numbers. Have fun, remember to drink lots of water.

Count how many times you can bounce a ball, catch a ball or skip. Record it on a sheet of paper, remembering to form your numbers correctly. See which member of your family gets the best score.

Learn a new sport, it might be tennis, football, rugby, find out facts about the sport, what equipment would you need? What are the rules? How many people would be needed to play?

Look around your house and garden, can you find any balls? Can you count how many you have found? Are they all the same size? Can you put them in size order? Do you remember what 3D shape they are called? Are they all the same shape? Can you draw them?

Get a newspaper or some paper, scrunch it up to make a ball. Dab it in some paint then throw it at a piece of paper that is either attached onto a wall or taped onto the ground. You could use the same 'ball' to see what 2 different colours added together make or keep the colours separate.

Roll a dice, see what number appears, record that number on a sheet of paper. Roll the dice, record the numeral in a number sentence $4+2=6$. Your child then has to run that many times around the garden or do that many hops/jumps/ star jumps. Repeat this until you have numerous number sentences

Find out about a famous sports star.
What sport do they play?
How old are they? Where in the world do they live? Have they always played this sport?
Ask everyone in your house, do they have a favourite sport? If they could be champion at any sport, which would it be?

Make up your own game.
What is it called?
What are the rules?
What equipment do you need?
